5 Things You Must Know Before Marrying a Russian Woman

Posted on December 29, 2014 by Lipi B.

Marrying Russian a woman requires lots of commitments and sacrifices. There are some simple traits that you will need to display through your behavior and actions in order to marry a Russian woman. You need personality traits like patience, self control and respect for relationships. You need to control yourself if you have short temper because women born in Russian don't tolerate aggression. The man has been dominant in many Asian cultures till the end of 21st century, but the culture across the world including Asia is changing. Now, every woman demands respect and wants to be treated well.

Things that you must know before marrying a Russian:

Honesty & Sincerity

The majority of the Russian women prefer honest and sincere guys for life partners. They never let you play with their emotions and will find out whether you are simply flirting with her or are being serious about the relationship. If she finds out you are cheating or only flirting with her, she will walk away. If you are not serious and honest in your relationships, then forget trying to marry a woman of this kind.

Show Responsibility

Russian women want to have this quality in their husbands. In the Russian culture, the men tend to bring home the money and women have more responsibilities to support their families. They believe a man should stand by his words and he should be accountable for his actions. They will test the man during a relation and continue the relationship further only if a man shows sense of responsibility.

Financially Stable

Russian women prefer guys who are financially stable. Therefore, they don't want to be struggling after they get married. They prefer to marry a person, who is financially stable and has good job. They want someone who can support them as well as their families because Russian women never leave their families.

Meet Parents & Family

When marrying a Russian woman, you have to expect lots of question in the form of an interview from her parents. Russian women take their parents' opinion into account, so winning their hearts is essential to get the green light for the marriage. They will judge your motives and intentions for marriage by various means before they agree to let you marry their daughter.

Mingle with the Family

Her sisters, cousins and siblings etc have special place in the life of a Russian woman. So, you have to also keep them in contact to develop better relationship with your partner.
